

BABYLON'S HORSES REBEL.

GENTLE ONES BECOME VICIOUS AND FOUR MEN GET HURT.

Louis Deitch so badly injured that he may die—three others, including a child, are seriously hurt—three delivery horses run away together.

HAYTOWN, L. I., Aug. 4.—Something in the nature of a demoniac possession seems to have come upon the horses of this vicinity. Within ten hours today four men have been badly injured by vicious horses, there have been equine murder, and a triple runaway. Every horse owner hereabouts is conducting himself with circumspection while around the stables.

The first victim was Louis Deitch, father of ex-Assemblyman William Deitch of Brooklyn. Mr. Deitch was driving a team of horses to his farm on the outskirts, when his horse, usually a gentle animal, abated at some object and became unmanageable. Mr. Deitch did his best to control the animal, which finally bolted, and the owner was thrown out. He was picked up unconscious and taken home, where it was found that his hip was broken by his knee-cap striking it. It is thought that he received several internal injuries also, as he is an old man, the doctors fear serious results from the shock.

Daniel Conlin, nephew of Postmaster Thomas Conlin of West Park, went to his stable this noon to see that all was right with his horse. While he was standing directly behind one of the horses, the animal, without any warning, kicked out with its hind feet, striking Conlin full on the jaw and knocking him senseless. When assistance came the animal was raging in its stall and attempting to break loose. Conlin soon recovered consciousness. Five of his teeth had to be removed. His injuries are not dangerous.

An attack of the same kind was made on Howard Dockery, a coachman employed by Horace A. Pratt, a wealthy summer resident. Dockery was working about the stables early in the afternoon. He was standing in the aisle, when a horse supposed to be of a very gentle disposition was lacking. Some of the other men on the place heard the animal romping about in her stall, when they got to the place found Dockery lying on the floor, and the eight feet of the mare's head. While the men were picking him up the animal made diligent efforts to reach them with her heels. Dockery's thigh was terribly bruised, and he was struck upon the head and neck by the horse's hooves. Early in the evening August Matthias, proprietor of the Watson horse stable, was riding a horse out attached to a sulky for exercise. The animal chose his own form of exercise by bolting for a mile and then stopping. Matthias was brought back unconscious. His face was badly cut and bruised and his body is covered with cuts and bruises. He was taken to the hospital, where the doctors say that his condition is not serious.

Early in the morning a stallion which was stable in the Watson horse stable broke loose, and set out with the intention of murdering the first living thing he came in contact with. He ran in a stall not far away. It took the stallion about three minutes to kick her to death. The Watson horse stable is a large one, and it is in veterinary lore are pondering the matter, and there is a theory abroad that this is the beginning of a general equine strike.

BENEFIT LIFE'S DIFFICULTIES.
 Liability $150,000 Greater Than Assets—Policy Holders Plan for Reinsurance.

The affairs of the Massachusetts Benefit Life Association had another airing at the office of A. Edward Woodruff, a lawyer, in the Equitable building yesterday afternoon. The condition of this company, which has been the subject of much discussion by the committee appointed by the Governor of Massachusetts for a year. Several days ago a number of the policy holders in this State and New Jersey, believing, as they said, that the company was insolvent, sought the opinion of Mr. Woodruff, and he advised them that there was any equity remaining for the policy holders in the assets of the company.

Mr. Woodruff stated that it would be impossible to give an opinion upon that question without an extended examination of the books of the company, and that the policy holders would need some examination. He suggested, however, that possibly the policy holders might get some of the information they wanted by inviting John Henry Rolker of Boston, President of the company, to attend an adjourned meeting of the policy holders. The suggestion was accepted, and Mr. Rolker was present at a meeting held at Mr. Woodruff's office last week. According to a statement made by Mr. Woodruff yesterday, Mr. Rolker, in response to questions from the policy holders, said that the assets of the company were $1,500,000, leaving an excess of liabilities over assets of $150,000. Some of the policy holders held that the alleged fraudulent claims should be included in the liabilities, since they were not all or any part of them were fraudulent, and he determined on by the court. But this question having been settled, Mr. Rolker, who was asked to go to pay accumulated death claims, Mr. Rolker, according to Mr. Woodruff, said that the company would be raised in the usual way, by levying an assessment on the policy holders. The assessment was called for, to be paid on Aug. 15. Subsequently a second assessment was called for, of about double the amount of the first assessment. It is said that whether the assessment can be collected or not will depend upon how these calls are answered, on or before Aug. 15.

After meeting so much from the President of the company, the policy holders of New York and New Jersey, or so many of them, as were represented at the meeting, took up the suggestion from Mr. Woodruff that, possibly, one of the policy holders should be appointed to represent the company in the New York company, and to secure a large number of the policy holders in the Massachusetts company, if they were present, to be present at the meeting, and a committee of five, of which the Rev. James Heywood of Elm Street was the chairman, was appointed to look upon the suggestion.

Mr. Rolker, according to Mr. Woodruff, caused a circular to be issued to policy holders, in which it was stated that an old-fashioned meeting of the policy holders would be held at the office of the company, and that the policy holders would be asked to pay the assessment on the policy holders in the Massachusetts company. The circular was issued, and the policy holders were asked to pay the assessment on the policy holders in the Massachusetts company.

At the meeting yesterday Mr. Woodruff stated that the circular issued misrepresented the facts, and that his office advised had been sent out by the company, and that the policy holders were asked to pay the assessment on the policy holders in the Massachusetts company. The circular was issued, and the policy holders were asked to pay the assessment on the policy holders in the Massachusetts company.

BIG POLICEMAN MOBBED.

ONE SIDE OF BYRNES'S 14-INCH MUSTACHE SUFFERS BADLY.

When He Went to Arrest Mrs. Murray of Cork Now, He Found All the Tenants in His Her, and They All Assailed Him—He Was in Bad Case When Another Cop Rescued Him.

Policeman Byrnes of the Essex Market Court squad, whose 14-inch mustache was pulled by a woman in the Essex Market Court last week, was attacked by a crowd and roughly used when he visited the tenement house at 235 Monroe street yesterday forenoon for the purpose of arresting Mrs. Kate Murray, who was the wife of a man named John Murray, who lives on the third floor, is on very bad terms with Mrs. Murray, and there have been angry words between them. Mrs. Murray went to the Essex Market Court yesterday morning and got a warrant for Mrs. Murray's arrest, alleging that Mrs. Murray had used scandalous language to her.

Policeman Byrnes, who is over six feet tall and tips the scales at 235 pounds, got no answer when he rapped on Mrs. Murray's door. He started downstairs, and when he reached the second landing a woman's voice from above shouted out, "There goes the fake cop. He's a fake cop. Give it to him!" This was the signal for the opening of doors leading to the hall, and there were a few excited men, women, and children. Several men grabbed Byrnes and threw him to the floor. While they were trying to kick him, a number of women armed with brooms joined in the attack. When Policeman Johnson of the Madison street station, attracted by the tumult, rushed into the house he was obliged to use his club to reach Byrnes. When he did so he found several women on their knees clutching at Byrnes's mustache in order to keep his head down. The men were attending to the other parts of his body.

Byrnes was rescued by Johnson, and the two cops arrested Charles McGuire, a shoemaker, who was the cause of the trouble. The rioting of the crowd. On the way to the Essex Market Court a crowd of several hundred people followed the cops and attacked them with sticks and stones in an endeavor to rescue McGuire. He was arraigned before Magistrate Groves at the Essex Market Court. Byrnes was a sorry-looking sight when he reached the court. One of his mustaches had been pulled out, and he was bleeding from the head. He was taken to the hospital, and he is now recovering. The rioting of the crowd. MONMOUTH BURN SOVEREIGN.

The New York Commercial Press Takes a Hint from the Twin-Silver Yacht.

M. C. D. Borden's steel twin-screw yacht Sovereign, which is accounted one of the fastest pleasure craft in the world, had a brush with the commercial twin-screw Sandy Hook flyer Monmouth yesterday morning and came out second best. The Sovereign had been on the Monmouth on a former occasion, when, according to Capt. Sam Martin of the Monmouth, she was not in shape for racing. She was prepared for her scrap yesterday when the Sovereign, which had been lying in wait for her at Atlantic Highlands, put after her, and she started New York City 3:30 o'clock. This story of the race is told by Capt. Martin and some of the thousand passengers on the Sovereign, who was on a cruise on the bridge of the Sovereign with some of his guests.

The Monmouth was going for all she was worth. Her screws were whirling at the rate of 1,200 revolutions a minute, and the water was registered 160 pounds to the square inch. The Sovereign apparently was doing all she was capable of, but she was not fast enough. The Monmouth began to show her foamy double wake to Capt. Jeffrey of the Sovereign. Capt. Jeffrey remarked that the Sovereign could make rings round the Monmouth. This is not a healthy expression of opinion, and Capt. Jeffrey must have felt somewhat chastened. The Sovereign was about a quarter of a mile ahead of the Monmouth. Capt. Martin was jubilant. As for Capt. Jeffrey—well, the reporters could not find him.
